MyCAF Profile: Reflection

Your reflective statement:

I'm probably most confident in connectivity, proactivity and communication as I feel like those are relevant for me at the moment to evolve my career, I'm only at the beginning and I know I'm going to need to network and share my own practice quite a bit when getting to know people, as I never know where it can take me. I wish I could take more risks and have more curiosity to come up with new ideas, but those are slower than my other attributes

I'm confident in.

I think in my line of work that I'm aspiring for you have to be able to show your skills in curation or gallery work, you have to be able to communicate with the artists efficiently and be confident in saying what works better in the gallery space to enhance the artist's work to the best of your ability, with a healthy measure of enterprise risk taking. I think I have the right mindset to get to this level but still feel like I lack knowledge to be able to give ideas without feeling like I have imposter syndrome and like my ideas are not as important.

Where do I want to be?

Creative Attribute 1

I think story telling and connectivity pair well together so I can try next time I meet someone of relevance I should try to explain my practice and skills with confidence and not feeling like my skills and practice are not relevant enough for these people to hear as one of them may be able to help me or point me in a useful direction.

Creative Attribute 2

Communication is always useful to keep learning from so I shouldn't be afraid to keep improving my skill, the more I can share my views and ideas the more confident I will feel. For example in a meeting with the gallery when I have to give updates I will make sure I'm well articulated and know exactly what I'm talking about, or when there is a space to give ideas I shouldn't stay quiet.

Creative Attribute 3

I'm already good at taking actions and finishing the relevant tasks, so I just have to add some kind of risk to it, like when I share an idea follow through with it to see what happens. Making sure I talk it through with whoever I'm working with to see if they think its a good idea and talking over all the possibilities to make sure there is a chance of an idea working or being relevant.
